Course Grant Program

The Temple University's University College is pleased to provide funding opportunities to encourage faculty to engage in research and creative projects in their coursework at the Ambler, Center City and Harrisburg Campuses. Applications are accepted throughout the year. This grant is intended to highlight the unique learning opportunities and resources of the regional campuses.

Project Criteria

The University College will sponsor this program promoting incorporation of creative projects and research at Temple's regional campuses into Temple coursework. Projects should utilize the unique location or resources of the campus and may be a part of a course section that regularly meets at another campus or the course may be taught primarily at the regional campus.

Eligibility and Guidelines

- Applicants/courses from any discipline or campus within the University may apply.
- Awards are limited to a maximum of $4,000 per grant. If the regional campus is the designated as campus of record for the course for the first time, the course may be eligible for an additional $1,000.
- Grant funds can be applied to materials and supplies, faculty stipends (as permitted with approval of school/college dean), and some travel expenses associated with the course or project.
- Courses that have previously been taught at a regional campus may be eligible for repeat funding.
